FAST FREDDIE

Wright Communications Company

Take off on a fantastic video trip. A voyage that simulates the thrills and skills of actual Hang Gliding. Players use the joystick to control Fast Freddie, but good timing and strategy is necessary to successfully negotiate invisible air currents, wind direction and up and down drafts. Fast Freddie has incredible visual impact. Freddie flies the skies over the Alps—over trains, trees, bridges, through winter and summer seasons; over the Pacific—over a yacht, tropical islands, an aircraft carrier; and over Egypt—camels, Pyramids, the Taj Mahal, the Sphinx, through day and night landscapes. It's a complete global challenge with non-stop action over a continuously changing panorama below.

As different terrain rushes by below, Freddie can score by swooping low to snatch flags posted along his course. Some of the flags are lettered. If Freddie collects flags spelling "BONUS" in sequence, the player scores even more points.

For additional points, Freddie has 10 seconds to land on any of five landing pads at the end of each round. Each platform is worth different points. He must make a successful landing to go to the next, more difficult round.

Freddie's flight plan is filled with perils. He must avoid aircraft, helicopters, birds, even a goner on a flying carpet. Freddie's mission is to maneuver above these obstacles in order to kick them out of the way. The longer he keeps flying, the more he scores.

An 8-position joystick moves Freddie up and down, keep him steady, moves him forward and to the left or right. Pressing the HIGH button allows Freddie to kick objects out of the sky (as long as he is above them).
